Help Create Greenbelt's Future At a Charrette on Sept. 28-30

by Marat Moore

Next weekend, September 28-30 – from Friday evening through Sunday afternoon – everyone in Greenbelt is invited to join neighbors, local leaders, architects and designers at Greenbelt Elementary School to brainstorm ideas about Greenbelt's future. Throughout the weekend everyone can come to early-morning coffee hours, join small-group discussions and enjoy conversations with their neighbors. On Friday night people can join the wide-ranging discussion of the question, "What makes a community sustainable?"

On Saturday morning kids can sample the "children's charrette" activities as their parents engage in roundtable discussions. There will also be creative "scenario planning" sessions. (See detailed schedule in the ad on page 16.) Lunch is provided on Saturday. (Call 301-474-4161 ext. 0 to reserve a box lunch.) On Sunday the creative results of this intensive process may be viewed as it all comes together in "synthesis workshops" ending in a closing plenary before the charrette ends at 2:30 p.m.

For anyone interested in the affordability, livability, sustainability and historic preservation of Greenbelt, the charrette will explore these topics on four levels of scale, from smaller to larger in size. Topics include: 1) cooperative units, courts and grounds; 2) the Roosevelt Center area, including the fields, library and municipal buildings; 3) Old Greenbelt – residential areas, open spaces, woodlands and Buddy Attick Lake Park; and 4) Greater Greenbelt, including all the city's residential areas, transportation, schools, watersheds, and growth and development issues.

Participants are invited to the charrette for an hour, a day – or the whole weekend – to help chart the future course of this vibrant community. Greeters will welcome everyone at the school, located at 66 Ridge Road, and help orient people to the charrette unfolding inside. As attendees join small-group discussions, designers and architects will be busy taking down ideas and then working in the design room to come up with visual representations of suggestions. Words and thoughts will be transformed into drawings that will be brought out for further feedback and revisions. It will be a fluid, fun, creative process that may provide a different way of thinking about what is possible in the years to come.

The Greener Greenbelt Charrette has been months in the making. The architects – from the American Institute of Architects, Potomac Valley chapter (AIA-PV) – have been boning up on the town's history. They have pored over maps, drawings, and planning documents on everything from the design of GHI cooperative units to the local watershed and forest preserve. They have read the results of the Greener Greenbelt surveys in which residents have identified the most important issues that need to be discussed at the charrette.

They have held long meetings with representatives of the local Green Ribbon Task Force, formed by Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) as part of its partnership with

Leta Mach Is Newest Candidate To Seek Election to City Council

The third member of the Greenbelt City Council to file in the forthcoming November election is Leta Mach, now completing her second term. Since the last election she has earned a designation as a Fellow of the Academy for Excellence in Local Government established by the Institute for Government Service.

Mach has represented the city on numerous local, state and national committees, including the Maryland Municipal League Communications Committee, the National League of Cities Human Development Steering Committee and the board of Clean Air Partners. She is also Maryland vice chair for the Metropolitan Washington Air Quality Committee and secretary of the Prince George's Elected Municipal Women. In addition, she served on the steering committee that established the National Agricultural Research Alliance-Beltsville to help support the mission of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center.

In 2000 Mach was honored as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen. This recognition followed years of community service in a variety of positions with many different community organizations.

She first became involved in Greenbelt when her children joined the Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School. She became a member of the cooperative's board of directors as chair of the Housekeeping and Bylaw Revision Committees and treasurer. Later she served as president of the PTA at both Greenbelt Elementary School and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. After her children graduated she continued to be involved in the school and served on the Eleanor Roosevelt Community of Schools Community Advisory Board.

In 1995 when the city council established the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE), Mach was appointed to the committee and elected chair by its members. Until her election to the city council in 2003, she continued to serve as chair of ACE, helping to guide the development of programs to benefit Greenbelt's schools.

Because of her interest in communications and writing she volunteered to help at the News Review soon after moving to Greenbelt. She served as a reporter, editor and proofreader for many years. In 1979 she joined the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee as vice president of facilities. The next year she became publicity chair and continued in that position or as assistant until 1992.

Mach's work experience also reflects her dual interests in communications and education. From 1969-73, she taught Early Western Civilization, Modern European History, Asian Area Studies and Soviet Area Studies at Suitland Senior High School. From 1981-87, she was the Information Specialist at Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). She was responsible for media releases, brochures, hotline messages, advertisements, audio-visual materials, a newsletter, annual reports, corporation minutes and monthly information and educational programs.

During this period, she served on a committee for the formation of the Greenbelt Museum, where she later volunteered as a docent. For Greenbelt's 50th anniversary, she chaired the Greenbelt Oral

We Again Ask Questions Of Council Candidates

Monday, September 24 is the last day for filing nominating petitions for candidates seeking election to the Greenbelt City Council. Those who haven't already filed, as well as those who have, are now forewarned that the News Review will once again be asking questions of them, the answers to which will be published in future issues of the paper before the November 6 city election.

This year we will be asking four questions. Answers to the questions will be published during the month of October with the first question's answers published October 4, the second question's answers published October 11, etc. Candidates are required to submit their answers to the News Review offices before 9 p.m. on the Monday preceding the question's publication date, preferably on disk or by email. Answers will be limited to 300 words. If an answer exceeds the limit, the answer will be cut off at that point.

All candidates who have successfully filed for the office of city councilmember will receive all four questions by the September 27 issue. However, in order to allow more time for the candidates to prepare their answers to the first question due October 4, we now pose that question:

1. What is the most important thing you would like to accomplish if elected to council? Explain.

"Doing Nothing" Not an Option For Speakers at Safety Forum

by Thomas X. White

Repeating their effort to gather community input on crime and public safety issues in Roosevelt Center, Gardenway and Spellman Overpass areas, the Public Safety Advisory Committee (PSAC), Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) and the Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) hosted their second public forum on Saturday, September 15 at the Municipal Building in Roosevelt Center.

In several ways the forum was similar to the first forum held at the Greenbriar Community Building on August 28. The format and ground rules were employed to maximize citizen input.

The forum was led by Silke Pope, chairperson of PSAC; Mary Crawford, also of PSAC; and Kevin Hammett of CRAB. All members of CRAB and PSAC were in attendance and the council meeting room was nearly full with interested citizens.

Even the mix of citizens attending was similar to that in the first forum, with representation from Greenbelt East, the Gardenway neighborhoods and other neighborhoods of Greenbelt Center. Overall the location for the second forum seemed to favor Greenbelt Center attendance.

Like the first forum, no members of YAC attended. It was explained that most members of that group were now away attending college. The moderators noted that YAC members had participated in planning for the forums and would be involved in preparation of the report and recommendations that will be prepared.

There were also a few repeat

Letters to the Editor

THANKS!

Once again, the Labor Day Committee finds itself in the position to thank a great number of people. This year's Labor Day Festival was a great success! The weather was fantastic and Greenbelters showed up in droves to enjoy the Festival. Although it is still early, all preliminary reports from the participating non-profit organizations indicate that everyone had a superior year.

While the all-volunteer committee organizes all aspects of the festival each year, we do so with the support of many professionals from City of Greenbelt offices. The Labor Day Committee would particularly like to thank the Public Works, Recreation and the Police and Fire Departments. Lastly, we would like to thank the residents of Greenbelt for your support. The Labor Day Festival was originally designed and continues to be a festival that supports the community and its organizations.

What makes this event so unique and completely Greenbelt is that it is ordinary citizens voluntarily working together which makes it a reality each year. The Labor Day Committee will soon begin planning for next year and we would like to invite you to join us. If you are interested in helping, please email laborday@greenbelt.com.

Thank you, Greenbelt, and see you next year.

THANKS

On Monday night, September 17 I attended the first "Reel and Meal at the New Deal," a free monthly film series exploring important environmental and social issues over a specially-priced but optional vegan meal at the New Deal Café. I really enjoyed the evening and was thrilled to see more than 45 people in attendance (which I understand raised about $360 for the Café!). The vegan meal deal (vegan chili, salad, bread, choice of lemonade or ice tea and cookie) was great and the movie "The Power of Community" was very interesting and the perfect opening film to complement Greenbelt's cooperative spirit!

Thanks to all of the local groups who organized the event: Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group; the Chesapeake Education, Arts, Research Society; Greenbelt Climate Action Network; Greenbelt Green Man Festival Committee; Global Consciousness Press, Inc.; and Prince George's County Peace & Justice Coalition. A special thanks to the Café volunteers who made the fundraiser possible.

I look forward to next month's "Reel & Meal at the New Deal!"

THANKS

Thanks to all who donated blood on September 18 at the Greenbelt Youth Center. The blood collected at the drive will help the American Red Cross continue its service in the face of the nation's severe blood shortage. Thanks are given to the Red Cross personnel and volunteers for their outstanding service.

The next scheduled blood drive is Friday, November 16 from 1 p.m to 7 p.m at the Greenbelt Community Center.

Walk-ins will be accepted to fill spaces for people who do not appear for their appointments. Those who have not been contacted by the Red Cross should call Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2212 to make an appointment.

Bereavement Group Starts September 20

The next six-week support group for widowed men and women begins today in Greenbelt. The program is led by trained volunteers from the Patuxent Widowed Persons Service and is co-sponsored by AARP and the Greenbelt Senior Citizens' Advisory Committee. It is open to men and women of all ages, races and creeds. There is no fee.

The sessions will be held on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Senior Lounge at the Greenbelt Community Center, through October 25. During this time the group shares experiences and exchanges practical information while discussing published materials prepared by bereavement specialists. Many persons struggling to adapt to their new circumstances after losing a spouse have found great benefits from the emotional support and friendship provided in such groups.

Pre-registration is required. For information and/or registration call Leonie Penney at 301-474-8943 or Kathleen McFarland at 301-474-6892.

Audiences Like Moon

Using footage shot and narrated by the astronauts, as well as film from Mission Control painstakingly married to the original audio tracks, "In the Shadow of the Moon" gives a more complete picture of America's lunar exploits than has ever been available.

Buzz Aldrin and seven of his colleagues – at least one astronaut from each lunar Apollo mission – are captured on film in candid interviews. Neil Armstrong, known for his reclusiveness, does not appear on camera but comes alive in the stories the others share. The film won the audience award at the Sundance Film Festival.

Before taking on this project, director David Singleton worked on several episodes of Nova; the film is produced by Ron Howard. With a runtime of 100 minutes, "In the Shadow of the Moon" is rated PG for mild language and smoking.

Strelkel pitched and got two timely hits. The second drove in the lead run in the seventh inning after Bowie tied the score at 9-9. The survey will be available until October 20 in both paper and online formats. The paper version of the survey is available in the store and can be returned to the Customer Service window at any time before the deadline. The online survey is at www.tinyurl.com/2wpnsw.

Del. Ross Named To AELR Committee

Maryland House of Delegates Speaker Michael E. Busch has announced the appointment of Greenbelt's Delegate Justin Ross to the Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review (AELR), where he will succeed former Delegate Nancy King in this role.

The AELR provides legislative oversight of state agency regulations and acts in a legislative advisory role for the Code of Maryland Regulations. The committee consists of 10 senators and 10 delegates with the chairmanship alternating each year between the chambers.

"Delegate Ross brings a passion for public service and incredible energy to the House of Delegates," said Busch. "He will be a tremendous asset to the Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review."

Ross has represented Prince George's County's 22nd district since January 8, 2003. He is the Chief Deputy Majority Whip and a member of the Ways and Means Committee, where he serves on the education and election law subcommittees.

Glass Show, Sale At DuVal Oct. 6-7

The Del-Mar-Va Depression Glass Club 72nd Semi-Annual Early American through Mid-20th Century Pattern, Elegant and Depression-era Glassware, Kitchenware, China and Pottery Show and Sale will be held Saturday and Sunday, October 6 and 7 at DuVal High School in Lanham. Show hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Dealers will display and offer a variety of quality American-made pattern (EAPG) elegant and depression-era glassware, china, ceramics, kitchenware and pottery. These specialist dealers are well known for their knowledge of the collectibles for sale in their booths.

Club spokesmen say sometimes the most interesting items are those brought in for identification by attendees. The club will continue its free glass identification service to those attending the show. Identification is by knowledgeable club members and dealers using the club's extensive library of books containing information about patterns, designs, artists and imaginative creations.

DuVal High School is at the corner of Greenbelt Road and Good Luck Road in Lanham. There is a fee for admission to the show.

Learn About Islam

Ramadan Fast Begins

Muslims began our celebration of the lunar month of Ramadan on Thursday, September 13, by fasting all day from dawn to dusk. This helps us attain spiritual closeness to our Lord. Fasting is a practice that was taught by all prophets to their people as God tells us in the Qur'an, "O you who believe! Fasting has been prescribed to you as it was prescribed to those before you, that you may (learn) self-restraint."

—The Holy Qur'an, 2:183

City Recycling Efforts Pay Off

The City of Greenbelt’s recycler, Abitibi Consolidated, held a four-month contest from May 1 through August 31 called “What’s Your Goal.” The goals cited were to increase local recycling efforts by either 20 percent or 40 percent over the past year’s May through August number. Thanks to the entries by Recycling Coordinator Cindy Murray, both the Greenbelt paper recycling drop off locations (Hanover Parkway and Buddy Attick Park) were registered to participate.

Hanover Parkway had collected 16.7 tons during the 2006 May through August time frame. To meet the 20 percent milestone for 2007, 20.4 tons over the four months would need to be collected and 23.38 tons to reach 40 percent. Hanover Parkway collected a total of 79.49 tons during the contest or an increase of 210 percent.

Abitibi Consolidated will award the top cash prize of $1,000 to the City of Greenbelt at the city’s council meeting on Monday, October 8.

Maryland Delegation Tours BARC Labs

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (D-Md.), U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns and Senator Ben Cardin (D-Md.) toured the Henry Wallace Beltsville Agriculture Research Center (BARC) on Monday, September 10 and received briefings by researchers on projects underway at the world-class facility.

The tour, said Hoyer, “underscored how vital BARC is to so many of our nation’s most critical interests.”

The visitors learned about research to confront the growing problem of soybean rust and BARC’s key role in the monitoring, identification of and protection against harmful invasive species. The three also visited a dairy barn where transgenic cows play a role in developing therapies for bovine bacterial infections that result in loss of milk production. Near a beehive a talk was given on BARC’s role in tackling Colony Collapse Disorder, which has led to a reduction in honeybees.

Hoyer has helped secure more than $138 million for renovation and modernization of BARC facilities and the almost 6,500 acres of forest and farmland on its property. He expressed pride in BARC’s role as, in his view, the world’s premier agricultural research facility.

appearances by people who had spoken at the previous forum and the testimony from all covered mainly the same ground as that at the Greenbriar forum. However, a few new suggestions were offered. From this reporter’s perspective, the tone and demeanor of the speakers at Saturday’s forum were a bit more focused and pointed.

Meeting Tone

Perhaps the tone was set by the day’s first speaker. The resident of Ridge Road near the Gardenway and Ridge intersection started off by stating, “Doing nothing is not an option! And destroying the overpass is also not an option but between those two extremes the city council has a range of choices that would be relatively inexpensive and prudent.”

She went on to offer a new choice to consider, describing a system of large turnstile-type structures that would afford 24-hour access for pedestrians, strollers and bicycles to the overpass but would serve in her words to “slow down the miscreants.”

Another speaker (who had spoken at the first forum) reiterated his view that the issue is not about access but, rather, is a matter of public safety. He listed five incidents of violent or otherwise criminal assaults occurring on Gardenway and in the vicinity of the Spellman Overpass during the past year. He noted that the list appeared in a flyer that was recently distributed in the adjacent neighborhoods.

The existence of the flyer, with the header “Spellman Overpass Solutions (SOS) 1-2-3,” was a surprise to the members of the advisory committees. There was a bit of a stir at this point in the meeting as several individuals went to the entrance table to get a copy.

The flyer, which had no official attribution, contained the notation that the SOS 1-2-3 policy proposal is endorsed by the Old Greenbelt Neighborhood Watch (OGNW). The SOS 1-2-3 refers to, “A Camera, A Callbox & Closed At Night,” as three steps that should be taken immediately to protect the area. The flyer urges readers to send an email to city officials and to attend the forum.

On the reverse side of the flyer are accounts of criminal incidents reported in the area on February 24, April 16, April 30 and two on June 29, which were taken from the Greenbelt Police Department’s Weekly Activity Reports.

A family member of one of the victims was in attendance and spoke of the very violent nature of the attack by as many as 10 suspects. She described the situation as “lawbreakers preying upon law abiders.” She urged that the bridge be closed except for Eleanor Roosevelt High School activities.

Gate Closure

This speaker was followed by another who cautioned that “closing a gate will not solve what is a larger social issue.” The speaker noted that part of the problem is the obvious disparity in available city services among the several sectors of Greenbelt. Closing a gate to cut off access to the Center, this speaker said, would only exacerbate this perception of disparate treatment.

Another speaker worried about the fairly indiscriminant use of labels applied to people encountered in the community, such as “miscreants,” wrongdoers” and “homeless,” noting that such a suspicious climate does not help and is counter to what the Greenbelt community wants to project.

Several speakers echoed concerns about closure of the overpass at night. They noted that the overpass receives a lot of use by pedestrians, bicyclists and workers at late hours. For some the overpass is like a lifeline and a much safer route than taking Route 193 (Greenbelt Rd).

Several other speakers spoke in favor of investigating the turnstile approach to maintain access and offered additional suggestions to address the issues of potential crime. One suggestion was to invest creatively in better and more painful vegetation choices for areas leading up to the overpass to make escape through the woods a very uncomfortable choice for someone fleeing the police – sort of a briarpatch and thorn approach in plant selection.

This suggestion got a friendly reception from the audience as well as the advisory groups.

Police Patrols

Other suggestions involved investment in a motorcycle option for police patrols in that area, more police presence in the Hanover Parkway areas, more police interaction with young people using the overpass and hanging out in the area, improving sight lines for the path leading from Gardenway to the overpass by realigning the path and a general feeling that teenagers in the community need to be involved in any solutions.

By the end of the forum, it seemed to come down to the basic premise mentioned by the first speaker; namely, something has to be done by the city government to address the issues that have been raised.

Moderators expressed appreciation for all of the testimony provided at both forums, urged the citizens to provide any additional commentary in writing to the city office or via email to Assistant City Manager David Moran at moran@greenbeltnmd.gov. The advisory committees will review all information provided and submit a written report to the city council.

AIA-PV in this project.

The outcome will be recommendations to be considered by the GHI Board of Directors and studied by city and county officials in their future planning.

Seventy years ago an intensive effort by committed citizens, government planners and architects created Greenbelt – which now stands alone in the United States as a New Deal-era “greentown” that has held fast to its cooperative identity in the face of great odds.

Next weekend residents can help envision where we go from here.

Help Needed

Volunteers are needed to help during the charrette weekend for a variety of tasks – registering and greeting people at the school’s main entrance and in the breakout rooms, putting out beverages and food, helping with the children’s charrette activities, running last-minute errands and helping to clean up. Anyone who can volunteer an hour on Friday, Saturday or Sunday is asked to call 301-474-4161 ext. 0 or sign up online at greenergreenbelt@yahoogroups.com. Volunteers are asked to work no more than one hour on any day so they can participate fully in the charrette.

Council Plans Its Strategy for Strategic Goal Setting

by Brian St. George

On August 20 the Greenbelt City Council, City Manager Mike McLaughlin and Assistant City Manager David Moran assembled in council chambers to consider how to go about setting strategic goals for Greenbelt. One Greenbelt citizen was also present and others may have been watching on cable.

The previous goal-setting and departmental briefings had been in February 2002. At that time after considerable discussion council identified seven primary goals: improve and enhance public safety, preserve and enhance the greenbelt (including improving parks and ballfields), enhance sense of community (including Greenbelt West and changing demographic goals), fiscal sustainability, invest in Greenbelt youth, enhance and facilitate cultural and artistic programs and provide quality-of-life programs for Greenbelt seniors.

McLaughlin provided a chart outlining the seven earlier goals, originally set in 1998, and progress made toward those goals in 2002. Each goal was then further analyzed by responses or solutions, action steps, status and responsibility.

According to McLaughlin, the goals had been achieved or were in an ongoing phase, for the most part, which he termed encouraging.

A primary difference between 1998 and 2002 was the additional attention given to art and cultural programs. Though not mentioned at this meeting, Greenbelt's arts supervisor Nicole DeWald had been given an "award of excellence" at the 2007 Maryland Municipal League convention for the Artful Afternoon program she has created.

The primary issue under discussion on August 20 was community involvement in the planning and envisioning process. Councilmember Konrad Herling proposed in writing a "forum for the input of our citizens and advisory boards" to recommend goals for the city for the next decade and means to reach those goals. He also suggested the city "take advantage" of the Greener Greenbelt Initiative (GGI) and "recommendations derived from that experience."

Mayor Judith Davis, referring to the GGI, concurred. "We need to hold on to that (GGI information) and see how we can use it." Davis and Councilmember Leta Mach suggested that council consider performance measurements for the goals. Mach questioned how it might be possible to get greater community involvement in the process.

Councilmember Ed Putens agreed that the community should not be excluded from the process.

Different Process

The city manager, expressing knowledge of the strong effort being put forth by the GGI, said he did not want citizens to think this planning process was a duplication of efforts. The GGI is focused on architectural, energy and land use issues and other related items designed to keep Greenbelt a sustainable livable community over the next 30 years.

The city's strategic planning, on the other hand, looks at city government services and responsibilities and how they meet or exceed the needs of residents in Greenbelt East, West and the historic center.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts suggested that "core issues be set. Otherwise, without parameters, discussions will expand into capital projects."

Another issue of concern was that city goals might possibly conflict with county goals. In such a case, council felt they would want to understand that conflict and how it might be used to a positive end.

Councilmembers agreed that they should have three events, in Greenbelt West, Historic Greenbelt and Greenbelt East, at different times to discuss and envision key issues and concerns. This would be the opportunity for citizens to take part in the city's strategic goal planning process and have their opinions heard.

Further information will be forthcoming from the city manager's office on when the city-wide forums will be scheduled. At this time January 2008 is the target month for the events. The forums will provide an opportunity for residents to interact with various city departments in a casual atmosphere and to share their vision with people who can make it happen.

Inter-County Connector

A short discussion concerned the issue of the Intercounty Connector (ICC) and the role of City Attorney Robert Manzi. Roberts asked why Manzi could not join an amicus brief opposing the ICC. In answer he was told that Manzi also represents the city of Laurel, which favors the ICC, and that he therefore would have a conflict of interest.

Hiring an attorney for the purpose of opposing the ICC would be costly and deemed not fiscally responsible at this time.

Roberts suggested that the current city attorney situation may need to be discussed for future issues like these.

City Notes

Animal Control removed a bat from a home on Ridge Road; removed an aggressive dog from its home and transported it to a county facility; returned one cat running at large; and removed a snake from a basement in Boxwood.

Public Works Parks Crew cut off bolts on the underside of the slide platform that were too long and also made repairs to the playground at Greenwood Village and tightened screws and adjusted support poles on the rock wall climber at the playground near Frankfort.

The Department of Recreation skatepark signs were repaired this week. The skatepark will be closed on September 27 and 28 so the general contractor can make repairs identified in the "punch list." Staff met with the general contractor on the window project to review progress. It is expected that this project will be substantially complete by the end of September.

Police to Hold Friday Night Sobriety Stops

The Greenbelt Police Department, along with the Prince George's Municipal Drunk Driving Reduction Task Force, will conduct a sobriety checkpoint in Greenbelt on Friday, September 21 in conjunction with Checkpoint Strikeforce, a national campaign to reduce impaired driving.

It is estimated that three of every 10 Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related crash in their lifetime. Alcohol-related crashes cost the public an estimated $114.3 billion dollars annually.

National statistics show that in 2006 there were 17,602 alcohol-related fatalities and that 13,470 fatalities involved a driver or motorcycle operator with an illegal blood alcohol concentration of .08 or higher. Last year in Maryland 41 percent of the 651 traffic fatalities were alcohol-related.

Surveys show that 87 percent of Americans support the use of sobriety checkpoints to check for drunk drivers. Forty states and Washington, D.C. use sobriety checkpoints to educate the public about impaired driving.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter.

A Review

“Dearly Departed” at GAC Has Lots of Laughs

by Carol A. Griffith

The Greenbelt Arts Center’s second production of the 2007-2008 season, “Dearly Departed,” is hilarious entertainment with lots of belly laughs for all. It’s a fun and loving poke at contemporary Southern culture. The play, first performed in New York in 1991, is produced at GAC by Beatriz Mayoral and directed by Lenora Dernoga. As always, the lighting, sound, sets and costumes are of professional quality.

The plot is simple – Bud, patriarch of the dysfunctional Turpin family who live “in the Baptist backwoods of the Bible Belt,” dies suddenly in Scene 1. The play concerns his family’s reactions to his death and the funeral in light of their Southern culture and problems the family is already facing.

Bud’s wife Raynelle (Phyllis Kay) is, on the surface, a genteel Southern woman. But she has secrets. Older son Ray-Bud (Mark Fulco), the rock of the family, is married to the down-to-earth Lucille (Jenna Jones). Junior (Jeff Landou), the younger son, is a hapless inventor. His wife Suzanne (Sharon Miller) is a would-be singer who decides to use her talent, so to speak, at the funeral.

The youngest child, the teen-aged Delightful (Meg Yednock), is most unfittingly named. Bud’s shrewish sister Marguerite (Erica Drezek), her backwoods philosopher of a son, Royce (Bob Kleinberg), and the town preacher (Mark Granfors-Hunt) round out the major characters.

The characters are played to broad stereotypes of Southerners. Royce keeps his cigarettes rolled in his T-shirt sleeve. There’s a joke about having a sofa in the front yard. The ladies of the family serve corn dogs at the wake. The women hold the families together and the men are incompetent. One character is a stereotypical never-married mother of eight, engaged to a man named Rebel.

The acting is perfect. All the characters are played beautifully, with the actors making the most of their opportunities for comedy. It would be hard to single out any actor over the others but Erica Drezek as Marguerite is outstanding. Viewers will never think of the word “harlot” in quite the same way after seeing her performance.

Meg Yednock often steals the show in portraying Delightful’s antics. The scene showing the preacher making his weekly radio show broadcast, which features less-than-perfect backup singers, is absolutely hilarious, yet respectful.

If one took the play too seriously, it’s possible to be somewhat offended by the humor at the expense of a mentally challenged character and a male character who is sick and senile (very well portrayed by Glen Nelson) while cared for like a child by his wife. But because there’s an innocence and light-heartedness about these additions to the cast of characters, it’s easy to enjoy the humor and the great performances.

All told, “Dearly Departed” is, as they say down South, “finer than frogs’ hair.”

“Dearly Departed” will play on the Friday and Saturday evenings of September 21 and 22, 28 and 29 and October 5 and 6, at 8 p.m. Sunday matinees are scheduled for September 23 and 30 at 2 p.m.

Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.

Greenbelt Pioneers Hold a Reunion

On September 7 a group of former Greenbelters (pioneer children) held a reunion in Greenbelt. They were greeted by Councilmember Leta Mach and Museum Curator Jill St. John. The group made a leisurely stroll through the city, visited the Community Center and the Museum and had lunch together.

The group’s first reunion was 20 years ago when Greenbelt celebrated its 50th anniversary. Since then, this group of friends gets together every couple of years in different locations such as Los Angeles, Ocean City and Florida. Others who could not make it this year include Charlie Howey, Donald Walker, Jan (Rogers) Davis and John Bonnar. Commented Howey, “Growing up in Greenbelt with these friends is something we will always remember. God bless them all!”

Two Locals Make Big Time with New Game

by Paula Clinedinst

What happens when a guy who is interested in board games meets a guy who loves trivia? For Dominic Crapuchettes and Satish Pillalamarri, they create a game called Wits & Wagers that gets picked up nationally by Target. Then last month, a Hollywood talent agency contacts their Greenbelt office for North Star Games – in Crapuchettes’ apartment – about developing Wits & Wagers into a television game show.

“Parents love Wits and Wagers,” says Crapuchettes, “because it is the only trivia game that children can win, even when they are playing with their parents and grandparents.” Players make wild guesses to fun questions like “In what year did the bikini swimsuit make its first appearance?” or “How many feet wide is an NFL football field?” After placing the guesses face up on a betting mat, players bet on the guess they think is closest to being right.

And players do not have to bet on their own guess, while the more outrageous answers are worth more points. So players can win by making educated guesses by knowing the interests of their friends or by playing the odds and hoping to get lucky.

To promote their game Crapuchettes and Pillalamarri host large game show events where people can play Wits & Wagers in teams. I ventured out to the monthly event at the Mayorga Coffee House in Silver Spring.

When I got to Mayorga the first round of play was winding up. About 20 people were mostly in “teams” of three or four people. For the second round I was partnered with Luke Warren, who knew how to play. There also were single players (including the bartender) as well as a family with a young child.

We were given two poker chips, rules were explained and the game began with “What year did the Nevada state legislature legalize gambling?” Luke and I picked 1932.

Once the answers were all in, betting began. We placed one chip each on “1927” and “1937.” The answer: 1931, and we won with 4-to-1 odds on “1927” because it was the guess “closest without going over.” In the end – seven questions later – we were the champions with 54 chips.

The second place team had only 28. “Winnings” are $5 worth of “Funny Money” for each person on the team. This “Funny Money” can be pooled together to purchase any North Star board game.

The “Mocha with Cream” team – Shauna Canner, Christy Carr and Nadira Isaacs – had one newcomer, and said they planned to come back. The consensus in the crowd was: a fun game and an enjoyable night.

Crapuchettes and Pillalamarri were lively hosts who clearly enjoyed interacting with the crowd, which responded enthusiastically when the hosts announced that their game would go on sale in Target stores everywhere this September. According to the inventors, the Target buying team members play Wits & Wagers on their lunch breaks because it is their favorite game.

It’s the duo’s most popular game. Their first one, Cluzzle, was introduced in 2004 as friends helped collate 2,500 Cluzzle game boxes, enticed with “we’ll buy the beer, you come col-late.” There were 30,000 Wits & Wagers games produced; this time, friends helped by providing feedback and criticism but production of this magnitude was not possible in a Greenbelt living room.

North Star Games has won 12 industry awards, including Games Magazine’s 2007 “Party Game of the Year.” As Pillalamarri stated, “Some game inventors concentrate on strategy but we concentrate on social interaction. Our games give families the chance to unplug, interact and laugh with the people they care about most.”

Greener
GREENBELT

Greener Greenbelt Initiative: Your Ideas, Our Future

Your Ideas - Expressed through a visioning process to help make Old Greenbelt even better than it is now. The original community is now 70 years old.

Our Future - Brainstorming together about what we can do to make things better; not only for tomorrow, but over the next 30 years - for Greenbelt's 100th anniversary.

Working in partnership, GHI and the American Institute of Architects, Potomac Valley Chapter (AIA-PV) are seeking input from residents about what features of their homes and community they would like to see improved.

*Come for an hour, a day, or the whole weekend!
Your ideas are vital to our community's future!*

The Charrette

The charrette is a highly interactive event in which residents, business and civic leaders, and design professionals come together to consider viable options for the future of our community. Through data, discussion and drawings — we will develop a long-range plan that reflects a shared vision. The Greener Greenbelt Initiative is about Greenbelt's sustainability, livability, affordability, and historic preservation, and the charrette will be organized into 4 focus areas or scales:

- 1) GHI units, courts, and grounds
- 2) The Roosevelt Center area – the shopping plaza, library, fields, municipal buildings, etc.
- 3) Old Greenbelt - the residential areas, open spaces, woodlands, and lake
- 4) Greater Greenbelt - the issues affecting our entire city and region (e.g. transportation, schools, watersheds, growth and development, etc)

10 Principles of Livable Communities

- Design on a Human Scale
- Build Vibrant Public Spaces
- Provide Choices
- Create a Neighborhood Identity
- Encourage Mixed-Use Development
- Protect Environmental Resources
- Preserve Urban Centers
- Conserve Landscapes
- Vary Transportation Options
- Design Matters
